Foresters getting more out of life

The Real Value of Life Insurance

When you buy life insurance, you are not paying for just a product. You're helping to invest in the comfort of knowing that the financial security of your dependents has been taken care of, even if you are not here to provide it.

If your household is like many, no matter what your income level, the money you earn may vanish quickly with mortgage, food and transportation costs adding up every month. Who will provide the money for everyday needs in addition to other financial obligations, like medical bills and funeral expenses, in the event of your death? And, if you have young children, you also need to consider who would provide for their care and education if you were no longer there for them.

Foresters™ has several types of life insurance products to choose from to provide the coverage that's most appropriate to your needs.

Foresters and Your Business

Life insurance can meet business needs as well as personal needs. When the business is the largest asset of a person's estate, life insurance becomes a major planning tool. Continuation of the business after death, replacement of key employees, equalization of inheritance for heirs not interested in the business, or the buyout of the other business partners become important estate planning concerns. Foresters offers several products to assist business owners to meet these business concerns and benefit the deceaseds' dependents.
